

Involving the Public in the Design and Conduct of Research:
Building Research Partnerships
A virtual workshop for Researchers & Members of the Public
Tuesday 10th May 2022: 10am – 12.30pm

What is it?

This free virtual workshop will look at practical ways to involve patients and the public as partners (PPI) in the research process. It will explore the issues related to becoming and being a member of the public involved in research and the role of researchers in facilitating this involvement.

Who is it for?

Patients, carers and members of the public who are interested in getting involved in research and researchers interested in involving patients, carers and the public in their research.

How long is it?

2½ hour virtual workshop by zoom link.

What will I get out of it?

- As a patient, carer or member of the public, you will gain an understanding of what it means to be involved in research at each stage of the research process.
- As a researcher, you will gain an understanding of how patients, carers and the public can get involved in research, practical tips, the opportunity to share your research expertise and build research partnerships.

Reviews from Past Participants

It was all invaluable I liked the format and the opportunity to interact and ask questions.

The ability to share information in a safe environment, within a small group.

All the information was appropriate and relevant. There were good opportunities to ask questions and interact with attendees

Having patients and service users there for the dragon's den element to actually hear what they thought of our projects was an excellent addition. Really enjoyable
